DEER FOUND DEAD.
One Killed by Train, One by Wild Animal in Vermont Woods.

Bennington, Jan. 14.—Game Warden Harry Chase went to Manchester Saturday to dispose of the two deer reported killed in that town and in the neighboring town of Dorset. The animal discovered in Dorset had been struck by a train on the Rutland railroad. It was a two-year-old buck and weighed about 150 pounds.

The other deer was a doe found by two boys in the town of Sunderland.
When first seen it was still alive, but soon expired, its leg and windpipe having been severed by the teeth of some wild animal. The marks of large claws were plainly visible on the doe's flanks, and in the snow nearby were the tracks of some large animal. A man who saw them said that the tracks were round like those of a cat and that his would just fit into them.

When It Failed to Work.
There is at present serving a term in the penitentiary at Moundville a former official of the postoffice department convicted of "graft" on many counts. The delinquent in question had always been most friendly with the Washington newspaper correspondents, and when he was arrested and lodged in jail at the national capital there was a rush of the newspaper men to the jail, they being confident of securing an interview.
The accused, however, refused to be seen, and his message to them was most characteristic:
"Tell them," said he to the warden
"that I am not in."—Ridgway's.

UNCLE SAM'S NAVY.

The Attractions It Now Offers to Bright Young Men.
The new law opening to the sailors the avenues of promotion to the commissioned ranks will have a tendency to attract the better class of our youth who are ambitious and whose circumstances have barred them from opportunities for advancement in other directions. In 1901 congress authorized the secretary of the navy to commission each year twelve sailors as warrant officers. To receive this promotion a sailor must be less than thirty years old, must have been in the service seven years, served one year as a first class petty officer and pass an examination upon the theoretical part of his calling. This latter requirement requires it necessary for him to devote his spare time to study. If he succeeds in this test he is given a tentative appointment as gunner, boatswain, carpenter or warrant machinist, and this duty being satisfactorily performed for one year he becomes a warrant officer at $1,200 per year sea pay, with an increase of $100 each year for three years. The fourth year his salary is $1,600 and after twelve years' service reaches $1,800. At sixty-two years of age he is retired on three-fourths pay for life.

Those whose ambition reaches beyond the warrant officer can have it satisfied through faithful and intelligent attention to duty, as, after four years' service in that capacity, the aspirant is eligible to a commission if recommended by his commanding officer and upon passing another examination. A bright and studious young man entering the navy as a sailor at seventeen may in twelve or fifteen years become a commissioned officer and retire at sixty-two with the rank of captain.—Joseph Jenkins in Leslie's Weekly.

One Centenarian in 127,000.
The labors of Sir George Murray Humphry proved that there is about one centenarian to every 127,000 people and that of seventy authenticated cases no one reached 110 years, three only are said to have been 108 and one 100. The full exercises of the various powers, mental and bodily, is conducive to great age, so that there need be no fear of entering heartily, actively and with full interest and energy into the assigned work of life.
Physical or mental. The inhabitants of any community, as in Delabole in North Cornwall, point with pride to the number of hale and hearty centenarians, nonagenarians and cente-narians living among them as an evidence of their healthy environment and hygienic lives. So in Paris, with its 10,500 octogenarians and 620 nonage-narians, 80 of whom are approaching their hundredth year. Six inhabitants of Paris are more than 102 years of age.—London Hospital.

Trajan's Column.
Professor Boni, the Italian archaeologist, has just completed his greatest undertaking, the restoration of Tra-jan's column, this task having consisted in replacing no fewer than fifteen pieces of marble which had fallen out of their places in the column, thus menacing a possible collapse of the entire structure. The grotto beneath the monument has also now been filled in, giving the whole a firmer hold on its foundations, so that no untoward collapse may ever be feared in the future.
The loosening of the restored portions had been occasioned by the fall of the bronze statue of the Emperor Trajan which surmounted the column.

Heine's Jealousy.
When Heine was in love he was so jealous that he poisoned a parrot belonging to his mistress for fear it would claim too much of her affection.

To Remove the Smell of Paint.
Put a pail of fresh, cold water with a slice of lemon in it in your newly painted rooms. The water should be changed every few hours and if this is done will quite take away the odor.

Salt For Cattle.
The only way in which salt should be given to cattle is in lumps, big enough for them to lick handily, with no danger of their swallowing them.

Coughs of Children
Especially night coughs. Nature needs a little help to quiet the irritation, control the inflammation, check the progress of the disease. Our advice is—give the children Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Ask your doctor if this is his advice also. He knows best. Do as he says.
We have no secret! We publish the formula of all our preparations.
